I gave him bread and a bunch of raisins to eat, and a draught of water to drink; and having refreshed him, I made signs to him to go He down and sleep, pointing to a place where I had laid a great pile of rice-straw, and a blanket upon it, which I used to sleep upon myself sometimes.

After he had slept about half-an-hour, he waked again and came out to me where I was milking my goats In the enclosure just by. When he espied me, he came running to m.c$_y$ laying himself down again upon the ground, with all the possible signs of an humble^ thankful disposition, making a great many antic gestures to show it. At last he lays his head flat upon the ground, close to my foot, and sets my other foot upon his head, as he had done before ; and after this, made all the signs to me of subjection, servitude, and sub-mission imaginable, to let me know how he would serve me so long as he lived. I understood him in many things, and let him know I was very well pleased with him. In a little time I began to speak to him, and teach him to speak to me; at first, I made him know his name should be Friday, which was the day I saved his life. I likewise taught him
